Palim und Miss Othmar haben natürlich beide Recht. Krokodil ist das richtige Stichwort, weshalb man die Kühlbox zwischen sich und den Fluss / das Meer stellen soll. (Wobei ich mich Frage, ob dies nicht vielleicht sogar Krokodile anlockt, wenn in der Box frische Fische oder als Köder nicht mehr ganz so frische Fische gelagert werden.)

TYTO WETLANDS IS CROCODILE COUNTRY

Estuarine (saltwater) crocodiles can also live in freshwater and these wetlands are known crocodile habitat. Crocodiles are a protected species and play an important role in helping to maintain the overall health and balance of the TYTO wetlands ecosystem.

Crocodiles are apex predators and often employ ambush tactics, such as lying in wait at the water's edge, to capture their prey. They will see you before you see them. Night, dusk and dawn are when crocodiles are most active as they prefer to hunt in low light. September to April is breeding season when crocodiles can become more aggressive.
